TREE TRUNKS Suitable spaces for public art wanted by artist

MARYANNE FIRTH
InPort News Staff

PORT COLBORNE — Larry Rosnuk wants to see art flourish in public spaces.

And where better to start than right outside his own studio door.

A proposal by the Port Colborne artist was approved by council recently that will allow him to put metal sculptures on tree trunks on the boulevard along his Fraser St.
studio.

■ LAND: Not fit for project

New site needed for operations centre

MARYANNE FIRTH
InPort News Staff

PORT COLBORNE — Port Colborne will have to find a new home for its proposed multimillion-dollar operations centre.

Council learned the site selected back in 2009 for construction of the new facility is actually unsuitable to build on.

After recently conducting a geotechnical study on the 5.7 hectares of city-owned industrial land on Stonebridge Dr., it was learned the soil consists mainly of clayey silt, peat/organic silt and silty clay from the surface to about 7.6 metres deep.

"Any type of building," director of engineering and operations Ron Hanson told council.

It would cost the city an additional $3 million to put in the proper supports to construct on the land, and as a result a new site is being looked for.

Preliminary design work already done for the project can't be used at a new location, Hanson said, though the environmental assessment conducted on the six original site options must be amended.

The amendment to the EA document is estimated to cost the city $15,000, and will be completed within eight to 10 weeks.

That cost will be absorbed into the $800,000 debenture council approved in 2012 to hire project management and architectural firms to complete the detailed design of the building.

Ward 2 Coun. Angie Desmarais was surprised to learn that after all this time, the chosen land is not fit for the project.

She questioned whether the city has an existing piece of property with an environmental assessment already completed to avoid the extra cost.

The EA document must be reopened and amended for this specific project, Hanson said, stressing the importance of "going through the process again."

It will look at other potential sites that may have become available in the past few years.

Hanson said the geotechnical study is not available at the EA stage because it would be costly to do at each potential site.

There are "four or five" other properties staff are looking at for the project, he said, though not all are city owned. Having to purchase a property, he added, would add to the project's price tag.

Ward 1 Coun. Dave Elliott

Port Colborne needs to find another location to construct its new operations centre, which will replace the facility on King St. The site that had been chosen for construction has since been deemed unfit to build on.

was concerned the estimated cost of the new centre seems to be increasing.

It began at $6.5 million, he said, and has since grown to $10 million.

Hanson assured him staff were working to get costs down to that $6.5-million figure.

"There are no frills on this building," Hanson said. "It's all needs, not wants in this facility."

The only way to bring the cost down, he said, is to "reduce the footprint of the building."

Major modifications 10 years down the road can be more costly than spending additional money now, he added.

"We don't want to be penny wise and dollar foolish," said Ward 3 Coun. Frank Danchuk. "This is not the Taj Mahal."

We just need something functional for this city."

The new recommended site options are expected to be brought forward to council within the next two months.

Artist credits councillors for helping raise awareness

The trees have died after falling victim to the emerald ash borer, and Rosnuk would like to bring them back to life through art.

He would eventually like to see a metal crow, squirrel and perch on the boulders — though only two of the sculptures have been approved thus far.

The city has improved the way it promotes arts and culture in recent years, Rosnuk said, and he would like to see that trend continue.

He credited councillors for supporting the public installation to help raise awareness of the tree's community.

While the artwork was approved for the public space, that green light did not come without discussion.

City staff initially recommended declining Rosnuk's request due to liability concerns.

Director of engineering and operations Ron Hanson said the trees will continue to rot over time and may not be able to support the weight of the sculptures.

"I'm not against artistic expression, but that's probably not the best place to have it in the middle of the street."

Hanson's main raised concern was the artwork would get hit by snowplows in the wintertime, becoming a potential hazard.

As snowplows didn't hit the trees in the past, they shouldn't hit the sculptures, Ward 4 Coun. Barbara Buttner responded.

"This is a unique opportunity to display something no one else has," she said, adding the artwork will be installed and maintained at Rosnuk's own cost.

If they become an issue, they can always be taken down," she said.

The sculptures, expected to be installed by mid-November, will be mounted with pipe and lag screws to the tree stumps, each cut to a different height.

While it is a "neat idea," Ward 4 Coun. Ron Bodner also raised issue over the weight of the sculptures on the dead tree trunks.

"There's got to be some liability here," he said, questionsing who would make the determination over time whether the installation remains safe.

"I think maybe we're holding the reigns a little too tightly here," said Ward 2 Coun. Angie Desmarais.

"We need to allow creativity in the city."

Coun. Yvon Doucet agreed with his Ward 2 counterpart that the boulevard was a suitable spot for Rosnuk's art.

He suggested the artist work with city staff to address any concerns that might exist about the design.

Doucet even went so far as to say he would like to see an outdoor art area on the city's east side where Ward 4 Coun. Bill Steele can be installed.

Ward 1 Coun. Bill Steele said Rosnuk must take responsibility for the artwork and must show liability coverage.

While the installation was ultimately approved, Bodner and Steele remained opposed.

■ READINGS AT ROSELAWN: Former newspaper chain owner talks about his new book while in Port Colborne

Black touches on citizenship, U.S. leaders

DAVE JOHNSON
InPort News Staff

POR T COLBORNE — While it paid him to do so, Conrad Black — Lord Black of Crossharbour — answered a question about giving up his Canadian citizenship in 2001.

Black opened the 20th season of the Readings at Roselawn Authors Series on Thursday evening, when he talked about his new book, Flight of the Eagle: A strategic history of the United States, and took questions from the audience.

In the book, Black examines the rise of the U.S. over the past couple of hundred years and looks at the contributions of key political figures, including Benjamin Franklin, George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Dwight D. Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, Richard Nixon and Ronald Reagan.

While most audience questions focused on the book and the presidents of the United States, one man raised the citizenship issue.

Black felt it a reasonable question to answer.

"The circumstances in which I renounced were that I would attempt to regain it as soon as I could. I only did so because the courts in this country would not accept that they had jurisdiction in the matter in which I approached them," said Black.

He said when he was put forward for the British House of Lords, all of the proper protocol was followed and nothing would prevent it as long as he was a dual citizen and did not use the title in Canada.

"The prime minister at the time, Jean Chretien, advised Her Majesty the law of the country required him to oppose my peerage. The law did not require that. The statute he was using was a resolution that was not binding."

Black said Chretien was upset when stories his newspaper chain was writing about the prime minister and Liberal party.

Before Black addressed the citizenship matter, he talked about his new book.

"Benjamin Franklin was one of the greatest diplomats in the history of the world," he said, adding Franklin spent a great number of years in England.

While in England, Franklin encouraged investment and immigration for the 13 colonies, even though he had no official power. He soon became very well known to the British parliament and had great influence.

Franklin was able, said Black, to keep the British from expelling the French from North America, so they wouldn't be a threat to British interests there, including the colonies. He was also later asked to talk the French into going to war against England when the American revolution started.

Black also spoke about the first U.S. president, George Washington, who was not recognized for the guerrilla war he led.

Black said Washington didn't fight the British close to the shoreline, he drew them inland where he could talk British soldiers in deserts

Washington kept the insurection alive."

As for the American Revolution, Black said it was more a war over taxes than the fight for human liberty, as it was portrayed.

"Thomas Jefferson sold the world the idea of human rights. Americans had no more rights after the war than they had before. They had no greater rights than the British."

Black called it the American genius of the spectacle and said the country knows how to use public relations and the media to sell ideas.

The former newspaper chain owner spoke for about 90 minutes before signing copies of his book.

He has also written biographies on Maurice Duplessis, Franklin Delano Roosevelt and Nixon, as well as memoirs A Life in Progress and A Matter of Principle.

Where's the support for Christians?

Just another bloody week for the Christian diaspora. A church is bombed in Pakistan and 85 people are killed while more than 40 more are maimed. The Pakistani Taliban claim responsibility.

Violence and civil unrest rocks Damascus and Aleppo, forcing Syrian churches to close their doors, possibly forever.

Thousands of elite Philippine troops battle Muslim guerrillas of the Moro National Liberation Front (MNLF) who raze churches before they occupy the key port of Zamboanga.

Christians in the southern Egyptian town of Dalgah are forced to watch as a Muslim mob set fire to an ancient monastery and steal its contents.

All played out against the backdrop of a shopping mall terror attack in Kenya where Muslims are asked to leave before hostages are taken.

Yes, just another instalment of terror that is matched only by the silence of political leaders refusing to speak in support of the persecuted.

From Algeria in the west to Iran in the east and deep into Asia, Christians are being kidnapped, terrorized, tortured, raped and murdered. Their fate looks to be at risk in the very heartlands that first inspired their faith, as well as in the furthest-flung corners of the globe.

The cause is aggressive Muslim fundamentalists seeking to cleanse Christians from land they have occupied for thousands of years.

Their fate is rarely remarked and little acknowledged — with Canada among the honourable exceptions.

All sorts of religions are attacked for a variety of reasons, yet Christians appear to be alone as they robustly back their right to exist. When it comes to specific acts of Muslim-on-Christian violence, the silence is deafening.

For the Taliban and like-minded terrorist groups, the key factor is always religion and they know they can act with impunity.

The connections they make are not national, or ethnic, or geographic, but religious. Hence, since they regard America and Britain and Canada and France and Australia and dozens of other countries as essentially Christian, they kill Christians to amplify their assumed religious superiority. As long as our ruling elites remain terrified of offending Islam, the self-proclaimed religion of peace that claims sole ownership of the term "persecuted minority," the fundamentalists will do as they please.

(REV.) DR. STEVEN DAVIS
Central United Church, Port Colborne

One thing that I've been following fairly closely recently is the debate in Quebec about preventing public servants from wearing religious symbols while at work. It's an interesting debate. What, really, is the role of the state in deciding that people shouldn't be exposed to religious symbols? Does the state even have a role?

A colleague of mine who has served in the past in Quebec has suggested that people from Ontario and elsewhere in Canada really need to stay out of this debate — that such interference is only going to enflame the passions and possibly revive the separation of church and state so doled out. Possibly. I've never lived in Quebec, so I don't have a real handle on how sensitively such "interference" will be taken.

There is, though, a deeper issue that seems (as far as I've seen) to have gone largely unnoticed. Apparently as part of this move, the Quebec government is going to establish a so-called "Charter of Human Values" which enshrines "religious neutrality" as a value. I struggle with that concept.

Is religious neutrality actually a value? I wonder if you can make a blanket statement that religious neutrality is always a value. There are things we should just stay out of because it's none of our business, and neutrality is the direction we have to take, no doubt.

But is there really a sentiment growing that says that in general terms having a stand on religion — having deep religious convictions — is not a value, while being "religiously neutral" is a value?

Or is this "religious neutrality" really a way of saying that unbelief is fine and dandy, but anybody who actually believes anything — who actually has a faith — is a problem? In other words, if "religious neutrality" is a value, then what is religious conviction? A weight on our society that needs to be thrown off?

Some would say that's true. Some blame religion for everything bad that's ever happened. Some see violence committed in the name of religion as a bad thing. Evil is evil and religion is poison and it must be done away with. And, of course, they're entitled to that opinion.

But religion isn't the only thing that causes conflict and even violence. Should we make, for example, political neutrality a value, and implicitly say that political conviction is not evil? I mean, stamping out The Devil is been a lot of violence done in the name of ideology over the years! Should we ban sports? I've seen riots and mayhem break out after sporting events. I've known family members who rarely speak because one supports one team and one supports another. Seriously! So should we declare "sporting neutrality" a value? Of course not.

The reality is that as a society we need people who will stand up and be counted for what they believe. What we don't need is an entire society that becomes afraid to make a stand — to be religious or anything else.

I'm quite happy to leave it to Quebec to decide what their public employees should or shouldn't be allowed to wear while on the job. Quebecers need to sort that out for themselves. But, in general terms, I fear the idea of "neutrality" — religious or otherwise — being entrenched as a "value" slowly creeps in. And what it seems to say to those who have convictions — about anything!

Strange ... I mean really strange men I have known

WILLIAM THOMAS

When I say I have "known" strange men I do not mean that in the normal sense or even the Biblical sense. When I say I have "known" these men, I mean I wrote about them and then I promptly backed over my computer in the driveway, changed my name and moved to a different city.

First there was Miguel Gonzales in California who was convicted of assaulting his girlfriend and sentenced to undergo anger-management training. During one of his first sessions, Miguel was beaten to death by his counsellor. Seriously, when you provoke your anger-management counsellor to the point where he strangles you to death with his bare hands, you got a real attitude.

In an early incident of street violence in Toronto, a prominent member of an Asian gang was shot and killed. The man's name was Chanh Thong Vo, but according to the Globe and Mail, "he was better known on the streets of Chinatown as 'Tommy' or 'No Wang Vo' because several years earlier he had accidentally shot off part of his wheelchair while the 45-calibre handgun that he kept slumped down the front of his happy blue jeans." Ah, if it's a choice, I'll take "Tommy" any day. And to avoid a truckful of really bad puns, I think we all relieved this guy's name wasn't Richard.

In Brunswick, Georgia, detective picked up a 16-year-old boy who was discovered naked after being snatched minutes after it happened and returned him to the scene of the crime, informing him he was going to have a face-to-face identification with the victim. They hauled him out of the cruiser and positioned him directly in front of the woman. There was a pause and then the suspect said, "Yup, that's the woman I robbed, all right. Okay, maybe he's just new at this."

Over 400 hygiene experts gathered in Hong Kong for four days a few years back to discuss "The Culture of the Toilet." Said Sachiko Azal of the Japan Toilet Association, "We have to make toilets something we can love." Well, when it comes to looing toilets, here in Canada we pride ourselves on thousands and thousands of university students who hug the porcelain almost every weekend.

When a woman at Memorial University in St. John's was facing nudity charges after being discovered naked with a man in the library study room, she chose...well, Peter Morris said "I'll be frank: it does have some humorous elements, doesn't it?" Actually, Peter those elements would be a lot more humorous if it was two defensive linemen from the football team caught naked in the study and they asked you to be Frank.

Added Morris, "We have no desire for people to be nude in the library." No, some time ago, while travelling west out of New York, these three young men stopped and picked up a dog, later identified as Buddy. see THOMAS | page 5

Buddy wasn't far from home

Buddy was digging through the trash beside a highway near Central Islip, New York and to keep the dog from biting him, the guys loaded him into their car.

Pleased with their new friendship, the four then proceeded to travel through New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri, Kansas and finally to their home town of Fort Collins, Colorado. I can just imagine the fun - wolfing down burgers, all cuddled up and snoring in the back seat, taking a leak beside the road - all the things guys like to do on a road trip.

Then came the words which once inspired me to write a book entitled "I'm A Guy." Not just right. And Damn If I'd H." "That's when we discovered," said one of the young men from Fort Collins, who wished to remain anonymous, "that Buddy had tags." That's right; Buddy was carrying identification, which showed he hails from Central Islip, New York, not too far from the heap of garbage he was rooting through.

Look, nobody said we were the smarter of the sexes, but there's never been any doubt as to who has more fun. To these three heroes (at least in the eyes of a smelly mutt who loves to go for long car rides), I say this: "I love you, Man! But no way, Johnny, you can't have Buddy."

Buddy, by the way, has since returned to Central Islip, New York, safe albeit somewhat confused. He no longer accepts rides from strangers, but he's not exactly sure why.

How about we designate 2014 The Year Of The Guy? Mission statement: "Men - we have the right to remain stupid, behave badly, own a rubber chicken and a whoopee cushion and operate them at the same time."

Warning: Women, do not attempt to match these extra ordinary achievements of the stronger sex. You are neither physically nor psychologically equipped for such exploits, plus you could hurt yourself giggling.

Only you can prevent kitchen fires

PART COLBORNE — If you can't stand the heat, stay out of the kitchen.
Or, better yet, just be more careful while cooking.

Preventing kitchen fires is the theme of this year's Fire Prevention Week, which runs Oct. 6 to 12.

It's a theme taken quite seriously in Port Colborne, where two recent fires have resulted from stoves being left unattended, said fire Chief Tom Cartwright.

Residents are reminded to stay in the kitchen, pay attention and to drink responsibly while making their favourite dishes.

To further promote fire safety, Port Colborne Fire and Emergency Services is hosting an event on Saturday, Oct. 5, at the Killbey St. W. fire hall.

Running from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., it will include an inflatable fire safety house, the Ontario Provincial Police rollover simulator, free hotdogs and drinks, face-

There's no cost to attend, but visitors are asked to bring a non-perishable food item for the Port Cares Reach Out Centre.

This Is What We Do Every Day

I don't think anyone wants to be over weight but for even me or another person as have to work a little harder at it, I am 25 yrs old and have been over weight for myself since I was born but I've tried to change my lifestyle a few times, try to reach half of my goal just to feel comfortable and not over working hard to my health but I still have not lost all of my excess. I'm 5'6" & 160 lbs. I took a photo of myself and weighed in at 220 lbs. I couldn't believe what I saw. Did not feel healthy!!!! I had a 2 yearning past for me and I know fully committed to reaching my goal.

Perry DeMan

My first step was to join EF fitness there I found it friendly supportive staff. I have now educated myself into what I need to eat (Ed. note: Eat often, Eat small). This has been so important to me that I am spending lots of my free time along with night walks with my wife Darlene who also works long days of her job as a flight attendant for Air West. Within a few short weeks I am at the number one of my goals, I had lost the 200 lbs and was eating a whopping 40 lbs. (open fat) 2013 to June 2013 / I was 183 lbs / I sustained all my weight loss eating healthy and have reached my goal of the 140 lbs. Cap 2013.

Recently I was approached by G&M and asked to write the interview, at first I was a little skeptical and uncertain about doing it. I then realized that night by sharing my experience it will inspire others. There is a better feeling than being healthy and fit, well worth the effort.

Now let's do it for you!

CITY OF PORT COLBORNE HYDRANT FLUSHING Fall 2013

Residents are hereby notified that the Public Works Division personnel of the Operational Services Department will be flushing hydrants beginning Sunday, September 29, 2013 to Friday, November 1, 2013.

This work will be carried out between the hours of 10:00 p.m. to 6:00 a.m. In an effort to minimize disruption of water service and inconvenience to our residents. This is performed annually for the general improvement of the water system.

During this period residents may notice a slight discoloration in the water. Residents may wish to run their tap until the water is clear. If there are any inquiries, please contact the Public Works Division at (905-835-5079).

The cooperation of all citizens will be greatly appreciated.

Ron Hanson, C.E.T.
Director of Engineering & Operations

Port bus fares climb Tuesday

MARYANNE FIRTH
InPort News Staff

POR T CO LBO RNE — Rates, one route and hours have all been adjusted.

Council recently approved the increase of cash fares to $2.75 from $2.50 for adults and to $1.50 from $1.25 for children 12 and under.

The cost to ride the LINK bus between Port Colborne and Welland will remain at $3.50.

The rates are the same as those offered by Welland Transit and are comparable to other municipalities in the region, said corporate and community services director Peter Senese.

The West Community Bus Route will change to help better service customers who shop at Food Basics. People often walk from the store with their grocery carts to the nearest bus stop at city hall, Senese said.

The carts are often left at city hall and the grocery store must be called to pick them up, he said.

A small change has been made to the route that will now see the bus come off Ash St. and turn left on Elm St. to a stop at Elm St. and Charlotte St., near the grocery store, before heading onto Charlotte and heading to city hall.

Council has also approved a transit advisory committee recommendation to extend hours of service in the morning to 7 and in the evening to 6. The extension is part of a pilot project that will be monitored to see how often it is used by riders.

Reserve funds will be used to pay for the anticipated $42,000 it will cost to run the project for a full year, Senese said.

ZOSTAVAX: PREVENT SHINGLES BEFORE ITS TOO LATE!

Shingles is caused by the same virus that causes chickenpox (varicella-zoster virus). After the chickenpox blisters heal, the virus remains dormant in nerve cells in your body. It can become reactivated after many years resulting in shingles. It is not known exactly why the virus becomes reactivated, however it is thought that having a weakened immune system along with physical trauma, UV light or stress may play a role. The risk of developing shingles increases with age and people over 50 years old are at greater risk. Shingles can affect anyone, but it is more common among those who have a weakened immune system, usually the chest or upper back are involved. Sometimes the pain resulting from shingles can last for weeks, months, or rarely years, after the rash heals. This lasting pain has been described as burning, aching, throbbing or stabbing and can result from something as little as a breeze or the touch of clothing on the skin. Older people are again at greater risk. Shingles may also result in skin infections at the site of the rash or scarring following healing of the rash.

Fortunately, a vaccine is now available to boost your immune system and help to prevent shingles and its complications. It is called Zostavax and is available to adults over 50 years old. The vaccine cannot be used if you are already experiencing symptoms of shingles; it is only used for prevention. The vaccine is given as a single dose injection and can cause side effects such as redness, a sore or tender area. As with medicines and vaccines there can have side effects, some people may experience redness, pain, swelling, or bruising at the site of injection or headache. These are the most common unwanted effects, but they are usually minor. This vaccine was found to reduce the risk of developing shingles by about 50-70% (depending on your age) within the first year after receiving the vaccine.

Zostavax must be stored frozen below -15 degrees Celsius until the day it is to be used. Only a few pharmacists currently have the correct storage facilities for this vaccine to be able to stock it. Zostavax is available from all of the Boggio Family of Pharmacy locations.

Zostavax is safe for most people, however it should not be used by anyone who:

- IS ALLERGIC TO ZOSTER VACCINE OR TO ANY OF THE INGREDIENTS OF THE MEDICATION (INCLUDING GELATIN)
- IS PREGNANT
- HAS A WEAKENED IMMUNE SYSTEM (E.G. DUE TO CANCER, HIV/AIDS, PROBLEMS WITH BONE MARROW, OR OTHER IMMUNE SYSTEM PROBLEMS)
- HAS ACTIVE UNTREATED TUBERCULOSIS
- HAS HAD A SERIOUS ALLERGIC REACTION (HIVES, FACE SWELLING, DIFFICULTY BREATHING) TO NEOMYCIN
- TAKES HIGH DOSES OF STEROIDS (E.G., PREDNISONE, METHYLPREDNISOLONE) BY INJECTION OR BY MOUTH

Since this is a relatively new vaccine, it is not known if it will provide protection from shingles for longer than 4 years.

Talk to your doctor or pharmacist for more information and advice about shingles and to find out if the Zostavax vaccine is right for you.

ommendation of Niagara Health System supervisor Kevin Smith to build a south Niagara hospital on the outskirts of Niagara Falls.

"I think it shows the Liberals have written off Niagara Falls after 10 years and-a-half, they still have not moved forward on this project," Hudak said during a news conference Friday.

Hudak broached the subject at Queen's Park Thursday and reinforced his message when asked about health care decisions stop in Niagara Falls. He was in town to discuss skilled trades in Ontario and spoke in front of a home under construction near Thundering Waters golf course.

By his side was Niagara Falls PC candidate Bart Maves, the only confirmed candidate for the byelection expected within six months after this week's resignation of Liberal Kim Craitor.

Maves has been touting two hospitals

Maves said he has been championing the concept of two full-service hospitals in Niagara — one in the north and one in the south — dating back to his time as an MPP before 2003.

"You need a concentration of specialists to be heck up for general-practitioner physicians, otherwise general practitioners won't come here and we've had this problem where we didn't have enough people to have a family doctor," said Maves.

Maves said he believes a south Niagara hospital will be a hot-button issue during the upcoming by-election.

Last year, Smith recommended the province support developing a hospital near Lyons Creek Rd. and the QEW.

It was one of two areas agreed to by a group of south

Niagara mayors set up after Smith suggested a second hospital to complement the new one in St. Catharines — he built it in the region.

The group provided Smith with the QEW and Lyons Creek Rd. in Niagara Falls or Hwy. 140 and East Main St. in Welland.

Health Minister Deb Matthews has maintained there is not a consensus in south Niagara for a hospital to be built on that site in Niagara Falls and is reluctant to commit much money to a until that becomes the case.

Some people, particularly in Welland, Port Colborne and Wainfleet, don't believe the Honeymoon Capital is in south Niagara and want the hospital moved closer to their community.

The way Hudak sees it, the government should back Smith's recommendation.

WHY PERFORM A WHEEL ALIGNMENT ON YOUR VEHICLE?

An alignment is a series of precise measurements and adjustments to ensure your wheels are travelling parallel to each other and that the tires are making full tread contact to the road. Wheel alignment prevents uneven tire tread wear, vehicle pulling to one side while driving, and the steering wheel feeling 'off centre'. It also maximizes tire tread life, contributes to safe and dependable vehicle control and improves fuel economy.

■ TURBINES: Niagara Region Wind Corp. appears before Wainfleet council

Come back later, wind company told

DAVE JOHNSON
InPort News Staff

WAINFLEET — Niagara Region Wind Corp. has the right to use township roads for its wind turbine project and will explore other options if Wainfleet council isn't willing to negotiate, company spokeswoman Randi Rahammin says.

Rahammin and lawyer Patrick Duffy, representing NRWC on behalf of the firm Stikeman Elliott, were in front of aldermen last week to talk about the use agreement and a variance from Meevin Croughan, chair and CEO of Niagara Region Wind Corp., was in the audience, but did not speak.

While such agreements are closed behind closed doors, earlier this year Wainfleet council decided to make the negotiations public and asked NRWC to make an appearance.

NRWC has applied to bring up to 80 turbines to install in West Lincoln, Haltonmid and Wainfleet. Of those turbines, 40 would go in West Lincoln, 30 in Haltonmid and seven in Wainfleet.

"I'm a bit baffled about the process. We presented the agreements to Mayor April Jeffs and (then) planner Grant Munday 5½ months ago. We understand you want to negotiate in open session, but are you going to do that," said Rahammin. In front of about 50 protesters in the community room of the township fire hall.

Rahammin said the road use agreement would allow the company to move turbines parts and access the construction sites.

"The main purpose of a road agreement is to hold us accountable ... for returning the road to its current, or better, condition," she said, referring to a 20-page document.

As for the vibrancy fund, that would see NRWC give money back to the community at a rate of $3,500 per megawatt. In Wainfleet's case, that would be $89,000 a year, or $1.7 million over the lifetime of the project. There are also payments of $5,000 per kilometre for transmission lines.

NRWC said the two legal documents were detailed and told council staff couldn't summarize them without missing details.

"Details are important. We're here to answer questions and get guidance on what the next steps will be," she said.

Wainfleet council not certain how to proceed in turbine matter

Jeffs said council heard from the public that negotiations should not be behind closed doors.

"With all due respect, we don't even want to deal with this."

She said council wasn't sure how to proceed with the matter either in an open process, as it was new to both parties.

Duffy told the mayor and council that NRWC needs to move forward with the agreements to meet timelines under its contract and wants to work out terms before final government approval for the project is in place.

"It's important to get the process started even if council is not going to give its approval," Duffy said.

Jeffs said there's frustration on the township's side because it doesn't have a large staff to deal with the issue.

"This is uncharted waters for the municipality and staff. We don't want to make mistakes ... we can't go in blindly and take what you say at face value, no disrespect."

The mayor suggested waiting to see if NRWC's projects are approved before moving forward.

PUBLIC NOTICE*NOTICE OF PUBLIC MEETING AND OPEN HOUSE PROPOSED REGIONAL POLICY PLAN AMENDMENT*(RPPA 3-2013)*Regional Policy Plan Amendment: Hamlet Policies*PURPOSE

Notice is hereby given that the Council of the Regional Municipality of Niagara will hold a public meeting pursuant to Section 26 of the Planning Act, R.S.O. 1990, as amended to discuss the Regional Policy Plan Amendment to the Hamlet Policies (RPPA 3-2013) as part of the five-year Official Plan review. In addition to the public meeting, Regional Staff will be conducting an Open House to provide members of the public an opportunity to ask questions and learn about the proposed amendment.

PROPOSED CHANGE

An amendment to the Regional Policy Plan is being undertaken to update the hamlet policies in order to ensure conformity with the Growth Plan for the Greater Golden Horseshoe, the Growth Plan and to implement the settlement with the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing (MMAH) on the appeal of Amendment 2-2009 (Niagara 2031). The proposed amendment establishes the structure and Hamlet boundaries for growth and development areas for hamlets and aligns policies with Financial legislation and Amendment 2-2009. The amendment will also include defined boundaries and mapping of hamlets based on previous decisions made in conjunction with the local municipalities. The proposed amendment will be applicable to all hamlets throughout the Region and will include both text and mapping changes.

HAVE YOUR SAY

Public input on the proposed amendment is welcomed and encouraged. You can provide input by speaking at the public meeting or by making a written submission to the Region. If you do not express your views through these avenues, you may be forfeiting your right to appeal Council's decision to the Ontario Municipal Board.
